Our Week!

We had another great week! As the 22nd was the first day of fall, we started to talk about seasons and what changes we might see during the fall. We also started learning about apples and will continue to learn more next week! In Reader's Workshop we are still working hard at rotating through our centers and working independently. In Writer's Workshop we are working on writing pieces about things we know a lot about so that we can teach the reader something we know and care about. In Math Workshop we have been working on describing objects and sorting them into groups based on their attributes. We also played a fun game called Button Match Up!

Next week we will continue to learn about apples and will learn about their life cycle, the different parts of an apple, and much more!

Have a fantastic weekend! Enjoy the sun! ☺

Homework

Make a list of ideas for writer's workshop. See the paper in your child's folder for more information!
